murdered his cousin. Katie Anderson, in 1880, and was sentenced to twenty years in State Prison.

Lizzle had been living with Wesley Warner in Brooklyn. They came to Mount Holly a week ago. Warner had a refreshment stand at the agricultural fair. He became angered because she received the attentions of young men.

Saturday night he went to the home of Lizzle's lather, about a mile out of town, and waited for her. About 2 o'clock Lizzle, her two sisters and three young men came along. waited for her. About 2 octook hizzie, her two sisters and three young men came along, laughing and taiking. Warner contronted them, and, without a word, stabbed Lizzie in the neck. She died before she could be taken inside the house.

Two years ago Wesley Warner was in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, on a charge of felonious assault.

The complainant was Elmer Severe, and Warner, after waiting trial for eight months, was convicted and given nine months in the Kings County Penitentiary.

At the time of his trial it was generally understood by the officers, and not dealed by Warner, that he had a wife and two children living in Burlington, N. J.

Warner, when he committed the assault on Severe, was one of the Union men on strike at Thomas shoe factory, on Hewes street, near Broadway. His victim was a non-union man. Severe was so badly wounded that 150 stitches were put in his head in the Eastern District Hospital.
